

The Best Practice

North Bank College, Ghilamara

Lakhimpur

1. Title of Practice: Handwritten Wall Magazine Preparation by the Departments

2. The Context that required the initiation of the practice: It is believed that student life is basically the formative years for the students. In this period, students realize their various potentialities. Most of the college students develop their literary abilities during this period and they need a right platform to nurture their dormant talents. So, being a higher educational institute, it was a responsibility of North Bank College to provide our budding artists a right platform so that they can excel in their lives.

3. Objectives of the practice: The best practices of North Bank College have had many objectives like: i. To provide college students a right platform to nurture and develop their potentialities in the field of literature. ii. To, develop among the students the habit and culture of reading and writing something outside their course.

4. The Practice: North Bank College's best practice desires to develop the personalities of our college students. So, various departments of the college guide their concerned students in the preparation of their annual departmental handwritten wall magazine. Students assemble in groups and plan to create their own magazines on any contemporary topics. They consult with their concerned guide from their respective departments and plan its proper execution. They write on white sheets and decorate it with their paintings. Students write in different languages and express their ideas and thoughts through the medium of their annual mouthpiece.

5. Obstacles faced if any and strategies adopted to overcome them: The students of the North Bank College face several obstacles while preparing for their handwritten wall magazines. For example, since the writers are budding students, so they often suffer from lack of words and other problems of writing while articulating their thoughts and expressing them. These problems are easily solved with the proper and able guidance from their respective teachers.

6. Impact of the Practice: The impact of our best practices was soon visible among the concerned college students. It was noticed that several students had emerged as regular contributors to local publications. Besides, many students were inspired to take up writing seriously. Apart from that, most of the college students in general were inspired to develop the habit of reading.

7. Resources Required: Man (students') Power; write ups, pens, pencils, markers, white sheets, sketch pens, scale etc.
